

Conversations

Which personality traits are important to have to make it easy to talk to someone?

Do you have any favourite conversation topics? What are they?

How do you start a conversation with someone who is shy and introverted?

Do you prefer to have a conversation in a relaxed setting or a busy one?

Who is the best conversationalist that you have ever met and why were they so good?

Have you ever had a deep conversation with a complete stranger? What did you talk about?

Are you good at introducing people? How can you help them to have a conversation?

What is your role in a conversation? Do you tend to dominate or are you subordinate?

What percent of a conversation do you spend talking? How much do you spend listening?

Have you ever attempted to change your conversational style? What did you change?

What are the best and worst habits to have while conversing?

Are you good at asking following up questions? What kinds of follow up questions do you ask?

Who do you think generally communicates better: men or women?

How are conversations between men and women different? Think about topics and styles.

What do you do when you think someone is trying to flirt with you in a conversation?

Are you prone to arguing during conversations? What do you generally argue about?

What do you think are "hot topics"

What are good topics to discuss with a stranger? What topics should you avoid?

Do you enjoy talking on the phone? Which is easier, talking on a phone or a zoom call?

Which do you enjoy better, having a conversation with friends at a restaurant or at home?

Have you ever said something to someone that you wish you hadn't said?

In your opinion, is it easier to have conversations with someone older or younger than yourself?

Imagine you could have a conversation with any famous living person, who would you choose?

The following careers often require lots of talking: teacher, politician, salesman, actor, tv show host, reporter. Which would you prefer and why?